We will critically explore the many intersections of bioethics, health humanities, and the worlds with which we engage. The COVID-19 pandemic has awakened deep concerns about our healthcare systems and systemic inequity. It continues to pose a threat to humanity with imminent potential for panic and fear that disrupts our everyday lives. Today, international community are slowly coming together as one to collaborate, coordinate, share lessons learnt and help one another. Global cooperation especially in the sphere of research development is essential to create new alliances and creative solutions.

OBJECTIVES

After participating in this conference, participants should be able to:

- Attend to difficult or embarrassing conversations about ethics.
- Achieve shared understanding and consensus to improve patient safety and the quality of healthcare delivery.
- Make recommendations about how to resolve ethical dilemmas.
- Provide effective communication and attain the clinical competency level of a paediatric resident.
- Discuss and apply recent research findings and insights from critical methodologies.
- Identify opportunities to advocate for structural, cultural, and disciplinary changes through examination of diverse values and viewpoints.
- Incorporate key ethical concepts into curriculum development.

Who should attend?

The Conference is designed for professionals who inspire to improve the quality of healthcare delivery, paediatric trainees, clinicians, nurses, attorneys, philosophers, members of the clergy, social workers, and others engaged in endeavors related to clinical and academic bioethics or health-related humanities.
